

2023 The Year of The Water Rabbit

The Lunar New Year starts on January 22, 2023 and ends on February 9, 2024. 2023 is a Water year, according to Chinese Five Elements. Because Water is the equivalent of black color in the Five-Element system, the year 2023 is also called Black Rabbit Year.

In Chinese Astrology, the Rabbit symbolizes patience and luck, which would mean that the Year of the Rabbit 2023 will bring peace and success!

According to the Chinese horoscope 2023, the Year of the Rabbit will be a good time for all the zodiac signs and an extremely lucky year for most of them! All the signs will be successful in love. This is a year full of positive emotions and excellent circumstances for starting romantic relationships. Health should be good as well, as no serious issues should appear in the path of any zodiac sign.

The Year of the Rabbit will bring less anger and more relaxation. And more good news: this year, money will come much more effortlessly than before. This year will be full of professional success and advancement. Most signs should manage to achieve the next level in their career. But this will require a lot of effort and serious commitment.

The influence of the Rabbit will temper those too impulsive or those with their heads in the clouds. This is why thinking twice before acting is important in order to fulfill all your plans successfully. Business partnerships can be beneficial.

Luck will be on the side of all zodiac signs, and you will often notice that you can more easily accomplish everything you set out to do. 2023 is the year when the zodiac signs can set sights on fulfilling their wishes because this is a great financial year. The Rabbit is known to be great at taking care of money, bringing more wealth and prosperity to your financial situation.

The union between Water and Rabbit confirms that this is the year to do the things you want and to dare to be bold. It's a good year for going "all in" on important undertakings. However, beware the temptation to avoid the tasks you need to do, or other projects which present a bit of a challenge to you. It's important to cover all the bases.

All zodiac signs should have plenty of energy, which they should be careful to apply in a positive direction. Be sure to fully enjoy recreational activities. One of the most important pieces of advice this year is to follow your passions and make time for activities that please you and make you feel good.